Hamel, Minnesota – Maxxon® Corporation has made access to product information easier with the launch of two mobile websites, www.Maxxon.com and www.RapidFloor.com.

Maxxon's mobile websites are intended to meet consumer demand for instant access to product information. Now when users access these websites with their cellular devices, they will be automatically routed to the mobile website. At the mobile home page they will find a succinct version of the site, which will allow them to quickly navigate to product information, project spotlights, and company contact information.

Maxxon Corporation is the leading provider of floor underlayments and sound deadening systems. Maxxon products are used in new construction and renovation projects of commercial, retail, and industrial facilities as well as single family and multifamily housing. They are available through authorized dealers throughout North and Central America.
